

Master of Integrative Wellness Management (MIWM)

The goal of the Master of Integrative Wellness Management (MIWM) program is to train you to be a healthcare and wellness administrator. MIWM is one of the few regionally accredited program that includes acupuncture and Oriental medicine into a healthcare administration degree. Much of ACAOM's knowledge and experience comes from its collaboration with Houston Methodist Hospital Wellness Services, which ACAOM has been working together since 2005, and our 6 sister schools in Asia. Once you graduate, you will have completed courses in acupuncture, wellness, and healthcare management.

Master of Integrative Healthcare Leadership (MIHL)

The Master of Integrative Healthcare Leadership (MIHL) shares similar curriculum to the MIWM program except it is 100% online. Many large hospitals and corporations focus on preventative health, promotes patients and employees wellness in order to increase productivity and reduce healthcare cost. This online program offers students the freedom and flexibility to study anytime, anywhere.

Accreditation

The programs are accredited Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges and the degree granting is approved by Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board. You will have the peace of mind that your degree is recognized.

Your Future Career

The field of wellness is growing at a rapid place. Aside from wellness centers, many hospitals and companies now have wellness programs that promote a healthy living for their employees and patients. Many of these wellness facilities require individuals with adequate wellness knowledge to oversee their wellness programs. With many of these programs offering acupuncture and herbal medicine as part of their wellness programs, it would be advantageous for you to understand how acupuncture and herbal medicine fits into the wellness programs. Most healthcare administration and wellness programs in the country do not have an acupuncture component. Consequently, choosing the right school is crucial in dictating your future success. Our college's philosophy is to provide you with both wellness and basic Oriental medicine knowledge so that you have the greatest chance of success.
